Berlin consumes $3,500,000 goose meat every year. Perhaps this may account for some of the goose tariff gabble they indulge in over them.

The Pennsylvania railroad is putting on style. It proposes to have 400 new locomotives next year and to expend $50,000,000 in new equipment and in brushing up.

A movement is on foot in Texas to start a home fire insurance company with a capital of six or seven million dollars, run with Texas money and by Texans. And that's what every Southern State should do.

A Chicago animal inspector thinks Chicago got a lot of smallpox in a consignment of hogs shipped from St. Louis. Chicago is so much prejudiced against St. Louis that it objects to almost everything that comes from that town.

When young lovers make up their minds to get married the old folks may as well surrender, for there will be an elopement or something else. In Maine the other day Joseph Felton, aged 86, and Miss Caroline Griscom, aged 82, quietly slipped off and got married without saying a word to the old folks about it.

It is said that the Senators in Washington are somewhat perplexed as to how they will place Senator McLaurin, of South Carolina, as they are not sure whether he is a Democrat or a Republican. Nothing strange in that, for he doesn't know himself. He calls himself a Democrat and performs like a Republican.

Boston now claims to be not only the leading bean burg of the country, but the champion stamp consumer. Her people spent $6 per capita for stamps last year, against $3 per capita for New Yorkers and $2.87 the city of brotherly lovers. Can there be some mystic connection between beans and stamps.

This Government is becoming a pretty expensive institution. Secretary Gage figures out the expense of running it for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903, at $610,829,688. This is for the regular appropriations and does not include special or incidental appropriations. But then, as Tom Reed used to remark, "this is a billion dollar country."

TO EQUIP HOSPITAL.

City and County Will Likely Appropriate $6,000 to Furnish the Institution.

JOINT MEETING YESTERDAY.

Board of Commissioners, Aldermen and Managers of James Walker Memorial Building in Conference—Meeting of Magistrates.

As the result of a conference yesterday afternoon between the boards of County Commissioners, Aldermen and Hospital Managers an arrangement was partially effected by which the city and county will most probably make special joint and pro rata appropriations amounting to $6,000 for furnishing the splendid James Walker Memorial Hospital, which was recently completed and given to the people by Mr. James Walker at a cost of more than $50,000.

When the late Mr. Walker made known his purpose to establish the magnificent memorial which now bears his name, he authorized Dr. W. J. H. Bellamy to summon a number of representative citizens of Wilmington to meet at his office. At this meeting Mr. Walker outlined the plan of his proposed philanthropy to the large number of gentlemen who gathered, and one of the conditions to his magnanimous gift was that the people, after he had completed the building, should equip and maintain the institution. For the maintenance of the hospital the legislative act incorporating the Board of Managers provided in the required payment by the county of $4,800 and by the city of $3,200 per year for this purpose. But unfortunately no provision was made for the equipment of the building. For several months, however, the Board of Managers set about to raise a sufficient amount by private subscriptions. Experts figured closely the cost of an equipment suitable to the magnificent building and it was found that $6,000 would be the very least needed. Despite most faithful personal efforts by several members of the Board only about $2,500 could be secured by popular gift and the task was abandoned. At the suggestion of many who had been approached for subscriptions and with a feeling that there was justness in the proposition for a whole people to pay for a benefit which would be derived by a whole people, it was decided to ask the city and county to make an extra appropriation out of their public funds to meet the cost of equipment in the same proportion as the two contributed to the maintenance of the hospital, i. e., two-fifths or $2,400 by the city and three-fifths or $3,600 by the county. In this way every citizen would be a contributor to the cause and would enjoy accordingly all the benefits of such an institution in their midst.

To get the matter in proper shape, at the request of the Hospital Managers the boards of Aldermen and Commissioners held a joint conference yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock with the hospital authorities in the county court room. Capt. Walter G. MacRae acted as chairman of the meeting by request and the following members of the three boards were present: Mayor Waddell, Chairman McEachern, of the Board of Commissioners, County Attorney McKoy, City Attorney Bellamy, Dr. Thomas R. Little, hospital superintendent, Commissioners Vollers, Montgomery and Alexander; Aldermen Harriss, Maunder, Skinner, Johnson and Spencer, Messrs. W. G. MacRae, Sam Bear, Jr., D. C. Love, W. H. Sprunt, M. S. Willard and C. P. Bolles, Dr. W. J. H. Bellamy, of the Hospital Board, and Mr. H. C. McQueen, chairman of the City Board of Audit and Finance.

Capt. Walter MacRae, in calling the meeting to order, briefly stated the object. Six thousand dollars was the least amount that would be sufficient in the opinion of Dr. G. G. Thomas, who had just completed furnishing the splendid A. C. L. hospital at Rocky Mount, and Dr. Little, who has had wide experience in hospital work. Capt. MacRae detailed the work of the efforts of his Board to raise the money by private subscription. The grounds could not be improved out of the $6,000, but other provision would be made by the managers for that. He said that with good management and proper attention he believed the hospital would soon be self-sustaining. If an appropriation was received from the municipalities the $3,500 subscribed by citizens would not be asked as they would contribute their pro rata in taxes.

Mr. Sam Bear, Jr., who has been very active in his efforts to secure the amount necessary by private subscription, spoke along the same line and detailed the work by the managers in this regard. He was also of the opinion that in a few years endowments would make the institution self-sustaining.

Dr. W. J. H. Bellamy recalled the promise to Mr. Walker by the representative citizens who had gathered in the deceased philanthrpist's office when he made known his purpose to give the hospital. Faith should not be broken now.

Chairman McEachern of the Board of Commissioners, said he thought Mr. Walker's idea of the furnishing was for representative citizens individually to subscribe to the fund. He questioned the legality of any appropriation that the county might make, and quoted from the act defining the duties of Commissioners. He was in perfect sympathy with the movement, but knew the county authorities were unwilling to overstep the law. Another reason against appropriation was that the budget for the year's county expenses had been made up, and no funds are now available. The money could be borrowed but first the magistrates of the county would have to say whether or not they would approve of an additional tax levy next year to meet the loan. If there were no legal objections in the way, he would be glad to call the magistrates together and arrange for the negotiation of a loan.

Mayor Waddell said as for the city he had much the same statement to make as Mr. McEachern. The Aldermen could make no disbursements without concurrence of the Board of Audit and Finance; the chairman of that body, who was present, could speak as to that. There were no funds available now and the negotiation of a loan would have to pass the Finance Board. Personally he was greatly in sympathy with the movement. He also discussed the legal status of the case, and although he could not satisfy himself that such a proceeding would be strictly legal, he felt no apprehension that anyone would question it.

Chairman McQueen, of the City Board of Audit and Finance, said he was heartily in sympathy with the appeal and he thought he voiced the sentiment of his entire Board in saying that it would approve of the appropriation if it were made by the Aldermen. He said he was not qualified to speak absolutely as to the legality of the appropriation, but that the city had sent money to Galveston and he thought there was as much law for appropriating to the hospital as for that purpose. He did not believe that the legality would be questioned.

Alderman Harriss spoke in favor of the appropriation and Mayor Waddell said as there were just half of the Board of Aldermen present if all the five members were in favor of the appropriation he would cast a deciding vote in favor of the appropriation if it was necessary at next meeting.

Messrs. Skinner, Maunder, Spencer and Johnson said they would heartily vote for the measure.

Chairman McEachern then said he would call a meeting of the magistrates as soon as possible and ascertain if they would agree to an additional tax levy next June to meet a loan to be negotiated now.

Capt. MacRae said all that was wanted was an assurance from the two Boards. Dr. Thomas and Dr. Little were going North in a few days and if there was money in sight they could make the purchase.

It was then agreed to call another meeting of the three boards after the magistrates had passed upon the matter and take the decisive action. The meeting then adjourned.

LARGELY ATTENDED FUNERAL

Impressive Services in St. James' Episcopal Church Yesterday in Honor of Late Dr. W. W. Harriss.

The congregation was representative of all classes and conditions of men, who had gathered to do honor to one whom they held in much veneration and in greatest esteem. Cape Fear Camp, United Confederate Veterans, attended in a body in uniform out of respect to the deceased comrade, whose long membership was an honor and credit to the organization.

The floral tributes were many and exceptionally beautiful. The interment was in Oakdale cemetery, whence the funeral cortege moved slowly after the impressive services at the church. Johnson; active, Messrs. Herbert McClammy, C. W. Worth, Iredell Meares, Dr. J. H. Durham, Major D. O'Connor and Capt. J. L. Boatwright.

Owing to Sunday schedules on railroads south, Mr. Thos. B. Harriss, a son of the deceased, was unable to get to Wilmington in time for the funeral, and another son, Mr. W. W. Harriss, Jr., of Gainesville, Fla., was unable to get here on account of his illness with pneumonia. Hon. John. D. Bellamy, a nephew of the deceased, arrived from Washington, D. C., Sunday morning and attended the funeral.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Special Meeting Yesterday at Which Unimportant Matters Were Transacted. Meeting of Magistrates Called.

At a special meeting of the Board of County Commissioners, held yesterday afternoon, Chairman McEachern presiding, and Messrs. H. L. Vollers, W. F. Alexander and F. A. Montgomery being in attendance, a number of routine and unimportant matters were considered.

Upon recommendation of the special committee appointed at last meeting, it was ordered that the income tax of $350 listed against J. W. Norwood be refunded, he having been a non-resident of the State on June 1st.

The annual report of public moneys collected by Col. Jno. D. Taylor, Clerk of the Superior Court, was received and ordered on file.

It was ordered that all convicts in the county jail under final sentence be sent to the county roads.

At the request of the Board of Hospital Managers the chairman was ordered to call a meeting of the Board of Magistrates for the purpose of obtaining authority to negotiate a loan of $3,500 for equipping the James Walker Memorial Hospital.

It was ordered that the amounts assessed originally against the stock of the Murchison National and the Atlantic National banks be collected as now appearing on the books and that the rebate by reason of the correction in deducting real estate as sent down by the State Auditor be allowed in a warrant to save extensive change in computation on the books as they now stand.

POULTRYMEN ELECTED OFFICERS.

Mr. Will Bonitz Will be Superintendent of Show in January—Annual Meeting.

The second annual meeting of the Wilmington Poultry and Live Stock Association was held last night and was attended by much enthusiasm. The principal business transacted, other than a liberal discussion of the forthcoming poultry show in January, under the auspices of the organization, was the election of officers for the ensuing year, which resulted in the choosing of the same officers, as follows:

President—E. P. Bailey.
Vice President—A. C. Sneed.
Secretary and Treasurer—W. C. Armstrong.
Assistant Secretary—W. H. McEachern.

Mr. Will Bonitz was elected superintendent of the poultry show. No better man for the position could be found. His heart is in the work and he is energetic beyond peradventure.

Interest in the show is on the increase and outside fanciers are writing for space for exhibits. The local owners are also getting in trim to meet outside competition in fine birds and will no doubt capture at least a few of the prizes. A competent judge outside of Wilmington will be secured to pass upon the exhibits.

JOLLY "TARS" ELECTED OFFICERS.

Annual Meeting of Naval Reserves Last Night—Proposed Trip to Charleston.

At the regular business meeting of Wilmington Division, Naval Reserves, held last night, the following civil officers and committees were chosen for the ensuing year:

President.—H. C. Howard.
Vice-President.—W. B. Savage.
Secretary and Treasurer.—S. K. Devaney.

Finance Committee.—A. A. Hergenrother, N. N. Davis and J. E. Bunting.

Uniform Committee.—W. B. Savage, A. K. Powers and J. L. King.

Armory Committee.—R. L. Vaughan, J. C. Meier and J. G. Prempert.

The proposed trip of the Division to Charleston during the Exposition was informally discussed and Mr. J. E. Bunting was appointed to investigate details of such a trip and to report at a subsequent meeting. If the company goes to Charleston at all, it is not likely that the trip will be made on the Hornet but aboard one of the transports of the army which will be in these waters early in the year.

The Opera House Last Night.

Miss Rose Coghlan and an excellent supporting company in the sensational society drama, "A Woman of no Importance," more than pleased a cultured and fashionable audience in the Opera House last night. Miss Coghlan, in the leading role, was all that ecstatic press criticisms proclaimed her and every member of the cast was all that could be expected. On account of the very threatening weather and in the face of a prediction of a violent northeaster, the audience was not so large as it should have been. Fate seemed to have decreed that Wilmington should not break the precedent of liberally patronizing the less worthy attractions and according only a meagre support to the meritorious.

The Morning Star.

BY WILLIAM H. BERNARD

WILMINGTON, N. C.

"THE ROBBERS AND THE ROBBED."

There are two countries in which there is warm discussion upon the tariff question, in both of which the many are taxed for the benefit of the few. The United States is one, Germany the other. The are both tariff protection countries, ostensibly for the purpose of fostering and protecting their own industries against the competition of the industries of other countries, but strange to say, these are the two countries that are most alarmed about their commerce and their industries and the two countries between which there is the most trade friction and conflict. With all the protection that Germany has given her manufacturers, farmers and others engaged in productive pursuits they clamor for more protection against America, the other protection country, and while this is going on the the protected in this country protest against any reduction of the protection they now have, for this would make them vulnerable to the attacks of the very people who are clamoring for more protection because they can't compete even in their own markets with the protected Americans. In both countries the protection champions are playing a fake game and making false pretences to deceive the people who are taxed and robbed for their benefit.

When protection is sifted down, both in this country and in Germany—for these are the two best illustrations of the protective tariff carried to extremes—it is a queer jumble. In both the masses of the people, who have no pecuniary interest in any of the protected industries, are taxed for the benefit of all of them, and in both one industry is taxed for the benefit of another, and some of them are taxed beyond all reason. In this country, for instance, the people who live by agriculture direct constitute about one-sixth of the population and they are taxed on everything they have to buy for the benefit of manufacturers, who with their employes do not constitute more than one-twenty-fourth of the population. As an offset to this the farmers have protection on wool, sugar, potatoes, wheat, barley, eggs and sundry other things, which are imported in precious small quantities, and these only when there is some sort of shortage in this country, as this year, when, on account of the partial failure of the Irish potato crop, potatoes are being imported from Germany.

There is pretty much the same condition of affairs in Germany, where the manufacturers are clamoring for more protection against the progressive "Yankee," as Prof. Paache calls the American, and the farmers—or rather the landlords—are clamoring for protection to keep American grain and other food stuffs out of Germany, the object of which is to give them absolute control of the market and enable them to charge their own prices for what they raise and sell.

The agrarians, as they are called, declare that American competition is ruining them, and therefore they demand more taxes put on the laboring man's bread and meat, although the laboring man has a tough time scuffling for a living now, and there are half a million workless workmen in the principal cities of Germany.

The new tariff bill, which is principally aimed at this country, is now under discussion in the Reichstag, and a warm discussion it is. Herr Bebel, is a Socialist member, who has caught on to the true inwardness of the proposed increase of the tariff on grain and other food stuffs for the professed protection of farmers. He raised pandemonium when in a speech in opposition to the new tariff he exposed the fraudulent pretence for the increased tariff on food stuffs. The substance of his speech is thus given in a cable dispatch from Berlin:

"Herr Bebel said there were two nations in the German State, the plunderers and the plundered. The Imperial Chancellor, Count von Buelow, spoke for the former; I am speaking for the latter. Fifteen per cent. of the German people are engaged in agriculture. The Chancellor said the remaining 85 per cent. were engaged in other occupations, and that 72 per cent. of these latter were industrialists. The proposition of the Government was to lay a tax of between 600,000,000 and 700,000,000 marks on food in order to make more profitable the occupation of 15 per cent. of the people. Only one-ninth of the grain is imported.

"Agriculture in Germany should be prosperous. The late Dr. Von Miquel, former Minister of Finance, in an official declaration three years ago, said German agriculture was prosperous. The Prussian Crown knows it is prosperous because it is now investing 3,000,000 marks in new agricultural holdings. The reduction of farm mortgage foreclosures of recent years showed that agriculture was better off than previously, and the lands has increased during the last century.

"This bill is intended, not for the betterment of the farm laborer, but for the betterment of the landlord. If any landlord is not getting on well now, it is because of large hunting parties, gambling, well filled wine cellars, sons in crack cavalry regiments and 10 houses in Berlin."

At this point of Herr Bebel's speech Graf von Kardorff, one of the greatest land magnates, laughed jeeringly.

"Yes," continued Herr Bebel, "that is the way with you fellows. You lay taxes upon the poor, and when it is proven to you that they are unnecessary, you laugh. But the world's history rolls on over you regardlessly."

"This bill foments insurrection. The Chancellor aims to overturn social order; we shall do our utmost to send this bill to hades, and we only regret we cannot send its authors and abettors there also."

The duties on grain, which are absolutely prohibitive, Herr Bebel calls "hunger duties;" hunger duties for the poor who will have to reduce their consumption of bread, and hunger duties for the landlords who are guarding and hungering for the money they want to squeeze out of the people. It is as he pictures it, a case of the "robber and the robbed," robbery justified on the ground that those who are doing well, as Herr Bebel declares, may do better and have more money to squander. Take his remarks, apply them to the protective tariff in this country as we have it and this would cover the case to a dot. It is the robber and the robbed there, and it is the robber and the robbed here, robbed not for the benefit of the farmer, who gets no benefit from the robbery, but robbed for the benefit of a comparatively small number of people who do get the benefit of it, people who have no more need of this tarifi protection than they have to carry lightning rods to protect them from the lightning. About the only difference between the German clamorer for protection and the American beneficiary of protection is that the former is bawling for more of it to protect him from the aggressive American competition while the American has not the gall to ask for any more but professes to be satisfied with what he has. But in both it is a game of legalized plundering "the robber and the robbed."

TOO CROWDED FOR BOOKER.

Here is another Booker T. Washington "incident," in which three Springfield, Mass., hotels and Booker figure. On his arrival in the town, Friday night, he applied at three hotels for a room, and they were all so crowded that they didn't have any room for him; so they say, but other hotels at which he did not apply were not crowded. It isn't stated that there were any excursions into that town to crowd these hotels, and the inference therefore is that it was the color of the applicant which so suddenly crowded them.

Of course this is a mere pretext, and that is the meanest part of it, in a town and State which professes to have such brotherly feeling for "the man and the brother" and where there are so free to find fault with and condemn the drawing of the color line in the South. They didn't want to take Booker T. Washington into these hotels because of his color simply, but they didn't have the courage to say so and gave a false reason for it.

The managers of these hotels had a right to do as they saw fit in such a case and refuse to open their houses to Booker T. Washington or to any other negro if they thought taking them in would be offensive to their guests; this as a matter of business. It is true they might have thus laid themselves liable to a damage suit, but it would have been the manly thing to have boldly faced the consequences, and not take refuge under a falsehood. A hotel manager in the South would have been honest about it and would have given the true reason for refusing a colored applicant accommodations in his house, and the probabilities are that if Washington had applied at a Southern hotel he would, without relaxing the rule, or compromising the hotel, have been treated with more courtesy and candor than he was by these hotels in a town in a State where they talk so much about the "brotherhood of man," "the man and the brother," and all that sort or rot. The fact is the man of African hue isn't given any more social recognition, and isn't any more welcome in the hostelries up there than he is down this way.

Senator Quay has struck on a device to reduce the surplus. He has introduced a new pension bill granting pensions to soldiers who served ninety days or more. This will take in the excursionists and lots of other patriots who never heard a gun pop. It also provides for the amount of pensions to be paid to all pensioners, of the ordinary class. Widows are to get $12 a month, veterans of from 50 to 55 $6, 55 to 60 $8 a month, 60 and over $10 a month. Senator Quay seems to be partial to widows. He also looks out for the pension attorney, who is to be allowed $10 for getting claims through.

In one section of Southern Africa they have what they call a "sleep disease." People affected by it fall into long sleeps, and finally die within two or three years. A similar case is reported from Kansas. J. S. Lytle, one of the pioneers, was at Santa Ana, Cal., where he fell asleep May 28th and slept till August 20th. He was taken back to Kansas where he again went to sleep September 2d and slept till December 3d, when he woke up and died.

A BOOST FOR THE SHIP BUILDER.

The decision by the Treasury Department, based on recent decisions of the Supreme Court, that cargoes shipped from this country to the Philippines must be shipped in American vessels ought to give a boost to the ship-building business in this country, for this ruling will no doubt apply to Porto Rico and whatever other outlying territory this country may acquire, and the result will be that exporters, railroad companies and others doing business with our "colonies" will have to hustle around and equip themselves with American built ships. As this rule will apply both ways, neither can shipments be made from those "colonies" to this country in foreign bottoms, so the foreign built ship is completely ruled out of this trade, as much so as it is from our Lake or the Atlantic or Pacific coast trade.

As far as the running of these ships is concerned they can't make any plea for subsidies for there will be no competition with foreign ships, which are ruled out, nor can they ask any bounty for the ship builder for he will not have any competition, but it will do this, it will force the American shipper to have his ships built in our yards and pay whatever price they may demand, or quit business, unless they can buy foreign ships and secure American registry for them.

Under these decisions and this ruling our coast line now circles the globe as it sweeps across the Pacific, winds around and takes in the Danish West Indies (if it be true that the deal with Denmark has been consummated) Porto Rico, and eventually, no doubt, Cuba, which, by the way, is a pretty tortuous and wide stretch of coast. The grab game is developing some unlooked for results.

The Germans do some things pretty well. The Government has instructed to hygienic associations in Berlin to open offices in which instructions in hygienic and sanitary matters will be given free. Competent doctors will be employed to deliver lectures, give instructions and answer questions as to the best ways of preserving health, the best food to be eaten the best clothing different seasons, and numerous other things in which people interested. The idea is to teach people how to take care of themselves, of their health and of their family.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—— Mr. Roosevelt is diplomatic. In his message he has driven the reciprocity bear up a tree and said to both Houses of Congress, "Now, crack away at the thing. I'll keep the score." A finer straddle could not be planned.—Houston Chronicle, Dem.

—— General Wood, who knows what he is talking about, insists that some measure of reciprocity on sugar and tobacco is necessary to restore prosperity and stability to Cuba. It is said with a protectionist sneer that Cuban patriotism begins and ends with sugar and tobacco; but this is an ill-natured remark that is capable of much more extensive application.—Philadelphia Record, Dem.

—— The Republican plan is said to be to admit New Mexico and Oklahoma as States, not because either has population enough to entitle it to one Representative, but because the admission of both would doubtless add four more to their majority in the Senate. The population of New Mexico is 153,593; of Oklahoma, 61,834, and the ratio of representation in Congress is 173,901.—Brooklyn Citizen, Dem.

—— The trust-making industry does not appear to be at all dismayed or greatly discouraged by Republican threats as to its regulation. Statistics of incorporation in the Eastern States during November, as compiled by the New York Journal of Commerce, show a total for new concerns above $1,000,000 of capitalization of $508,850,000. The record has been surpassed in no month during the year except April, when the big Steel Trust was launched. The aggregate capitalization of combinations organized in the past eleven months reaches the total of $3,205,605,000, against $2,255,075,900 last year.—Charleston News and Courier, Dem.

— She will probably get tired of him when they have been married a year. Oh, no. He's got more money than that.—Boston Transcript.

Mount Olive Advertiser: The tobbacco acreage of this section could be increased ten-fold next season, if our merchants and farmers would unite in an earnest effort in that direction. Grumbling about lossess on cotton won't produce tobacco; it takes hard working farmers encouraged by enterprising merchants.

— Newbern Journal: For several weeks a party of Northern capitalists have been quietly at work near this city and in Craven county making preparations to bore for oil. The "signs" showed the possibilities for oil, and the parties now at work are so confident of success that everything is fast approaching the time when active boring will begin, derricks, machinery, etc., being now erected.

— Statesville Landmark: There is some counterfeit money in circulation in Statesville and those who handle coin should be careful. The counterfeit is an imitation silver dollar bearing date of 1891. It is fairly well executed, but the material is poor. It is very light weight and can be easily detected if one takes notice. Two or three business men have taken in these dollars without detecting them and without knowing who gave them in.

— Tarboro Southerner: W. H. McNair, on a three-acre lot near the town, gathered four bales of cotton, and did not go strongly on the intensive system either. N. P. Bullock, near Dorhead, on two acres made over three bales. On Judge Howard's Oak Spring farm, James Ruffin has picked from 175 acres 212,000 pounds of cotton. —— Not a farmer is to be seen who is making headway in harvesting his crops. All speak of the insufficiency of labor.

— Raleigh News and Observer: Speaking of Gerald McCarthy's resolution before the Board of Agriculture to encourage silk culture in this country, Maj. W. A. Graham said yesterday that the people of this section of the State were wild over the subject of developing the silk industry some fifty years ago. "I remember," said Maj. Graham, "that Mulberry trees were planted all through this section by prospective silk growers, who dreamed that they would rival Paris in the silk industry. The old fair grounds was a forest of mulberry trees. The silk fever soon passed away. Up in Lincoln county the silk industry was undertaken and even now there are a few people who cultivate silk worms."

— Kinston Free Press: Mrs. Frank Turner committed suicide at her home in Woodington township, seven or eight miles from Kinston, Saturday morning. It seems that she woke up about 4.30 o'clock and dressed, then went into the kitchen and started to cook breakfast with the assistance of one of her little girls. About 5 o'clock she left the kitchen, telling her little girl to finish breakfast. This was the last seen of her until Mr. Turner, her husband, went into her room about 7 o'clock and found his wife, fully dressed, lying across the bed unconscious. An empty bottle with a carbolic acid label on it told the sad story. The cause of her suicide is ascribed to despondency caused by a long period of ill health.

CONDENSED STORIES.

How Irving Got a Valuable Tip on Stage "Business."

Irving is nothing if not severely accurate. Shortly before he put on the "Merchant of Venice" he inquired of a brother actor if he could supply some stage "business" for the part of Shylock, says a writer in The Ledger Monthly. The actor, being, like Shylock, a Hebrew, thought he might and asked Irving how he meant to do the "imprecation scene," which occurs upon Shylock discovering that Jessica has fled with Lorenzo and the jewelry of her late mother, "Mrs. Shylock."

Irving knelt, held his hands prayerlike and rehearsed the terrible imprecation—"I would my daughter were dead at my feet and the jewels in her ear."

Upon the actor's saying he was wrong Irving rejoined that he had followed the best stage direction in the book and that all the best Shylocks so did it, as the Keans, Brooke, Fechter and Phelps.

"Yes," said the actor; "but they were all Christians. A Hebrew in imprecating never kneels, but stands upright, passing his open hand over his face."

Irving adopted the hint.

Soon afterward a well known London solicitor, also a Hebrew, who had seen the new version, told the actor in question that he had not before been aware that Irving was "one of us," and he refused to believe the contrary.

The Eighty Said Grace.

John Lawrence Toole, the most popular low comedian of his day, once gave a supper to 80 of his friends and wrote a note to each of them privately beforehand asking him whether he would be so good as to say grace, as no clergyman would be present. It is said that the faces of those 80 men as they rose in a body when Toole tapped on the table as a signal for grace was a sight which will never be forgotten.

Thrifty Senator Mason.

"I was standing in the lobby of the Auditorium in Chicago," remarked ex-Congressman P. J. Sommers recently to a writer in the Milwaukee Sentinel, "talking with Senator William E. Mason of Illinois when a trampish looking fellow came rushing in and, addressing him, said:

"'Billy, lend me $10. I have a chance to make $3 in 15 minutes.'

"Billy went down in his trousers, fished up a two dollar and a one dollar note and passed them over to the man.

"'I want $10 to make the deal,' remarked the man as he stretched forth his hand for additional aid.

"'You said you could make $3, didn't you?'

"'Yes.'

"'Well, you've made $3, and I'm $7 ahead. See?'

"The man saw the point and regretfully withdrew.

His Greatest Reward.

The death of Sir John Stainer removes one of the most fascinating personalities from the musical world. A story is told of how once he was walking with a friend by the seaside when he came upon a little group of children singing one of his hymns. "Ah!" he said as they listened to the young voices, "this is the greatest reward that I can ever hope for." The story recalls Sir Joshua Reynolds' famous mot on his great picture of Mrs. Siddons as the tragic muse. This picture is the only one which bears Sir Joshua's signature. "Madam," said the artist, "if my name should go down to posterity it must be on the hem of your garment."

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The cotton future market opened steady at an advance of fourteen to twenty-two points, and during the first hour was remarkably strong on enormous demand from shorts who were stampeded by a bulge of eight to nine points in Liverpool. Bull confidence was intensified by rumors of an advance of ¼@⅛c in Southern spot markets. On the first wave of buying, January jumped to 8.25c and May to 8.29c, these figures being about the best of the session. Heavy rains over most of the belt, with snow in Memphis, coupled for a forecast for very much colder temperatures in the South to-night, added to the bullish feeling here. Wall street and Western grain interests sold out blocks of January and March on the uplift Towards midday the market went off a few points under room selling and broke sharply soon after midday under large estimates for to-morrow's New Orleans and Houston receipts. January touched 8.13 and May 8.17 before fresh general buying turned the scale and rallied the market eight points. The room played for a reaction, but the second advance was so rapid that very little cotton was picked up to good advantage. It was seen that total port receipts for the day fell many thousands of bales short of total port clearances. Fall River news was very favorable and spinners were reported bidding freely for supplies throughout the South. Interior receipts for the day fell 10,000 bales short of those the same day last year. In the last hour, shorts were very nervous and picked up a good deal of cotton sold by scalpers for profits. The market closed steady at a net advance of eight to fifteen points.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Jack, the Pet Monkey, and Some of the Tricks He Played.

Jack, my pet monkey, was full of mischief, but he was so entertaining that I didn't mind his mischief, says an animal lover in an exchange. Sometimes, it is true, I had to keep him caged, but that was a difficult matter, for he would find a way to undo almost any fastening. He was very sociable with my visitors, and if I would allow him he would never fail to investigate the contents of their pockets.

He would stow pennies and buttons in his mouth and would then eat candy and nuts, afterward taking out the pennies and buttons that I thought he had swallowed. He tried on gloves, opened letters, smelled flowers, wiped his mouth on a handkerchief and even tried to put on a pair of spectacles. I have seen him try to put hairpins in his hair, and when he failed he would straighten them out into toothpicks.

One day he got into the kitchen, and when the cook was not paying particular attention to him he jumped up on the table, seized a pail of water that was standing there and emptied the contents on the sleeping cat. He never lost an opportunity to play a joke on old tab or on the younger cats either, for that matter. He often succeeded when he was caged in enticing cats close to the bars, when he would seize their ears and pull them until the victims fairly squalled.

This habit of his was well known to a neighbor of mine, and once when she was visiting me with her baby the little one, unnoticed for the moment, crawled up to the cage to have a good look at Jack. The mother saw it and rushed to rescue the child, but Jack was too quick for her and had grasped it by the shoulders before she could reach the spot. He had no intention of pulling its ears, however, for he drew it gently to the bars and kissed it right on the face.

Potato Dolls.

One day Gladys brought a new doll to school—her "potato baby," she called it. Evidently another doll had lost her hair at some time, for a yellow dolly wig was pinned on the potato head, while the eyes were large black beads pressed hard into the face, and the nose and mouth were cut into the potato and colored red. The body was a clothespin pushed into the potato, and the doll was dressed in the clothes of some other doll. Gladys loved her dolly, and the children looked at it with eager curiosity. One day she let some other little girls into the secret of her baby's make up and told them to bring dollies of their own to school on the next day. Each little girl found a different way of dressing her doll, and it was a varied assortment of "potato babies" that the teacher beheld on the following day. Since then the hearts of many other little children have been gladdened by having a dolly which is none the worse for falling.

Mount Vernon.

Mount Vernon, once the home and now the burial place place of George Washington, is so associated in public affection with the name and deeds of the Father of His Country that we always think of the first president when we think of the home that he made famous. But George Washington did not name Mount Vernon. It was so called before he came into possession of it. George Washington's half brother, Augustine Washington, was the first owner of the estate and gave it the name of Mount Vernon in honor of Admiral Vernon, a famous British commander under whom Augustine Washington served in the old war against Spain early in the eighteenth century. He was a devoted admirer of the old admiral, and when the war was ended and he came back to his estate he named the place Mount Vernon in the admiral's honor.

To Fix a Coin to the Wall.

Privately notch the rim of a dime so that a sharp point of silver may stick up. Take the coin in your hand and, having uttered some cabalistic words, press it against the door or wainscot in such a manner that the projecting point of silver may enter the wood and thus sustain the piece. When you remove the coin, take care to nip off the raised point, having done which you may safely challenge any person to perform the feat.

Owls All Around Him.

The singular ornament of an owl at bow and stern of James Gordon Bennett's magnificent new yacht Lysistrata will not strike those who know that his fetich is an owl as so strange after all. On his famous old yacht Namouna one saw owls everywhere—stuffed, plaster, marble, silver, bronze, wooden owls of all sizes and in every position. Owls peered into the saltcellars on the dinner table, formed pepper boxes, seals, handles to walking canes, fire-irons, paper knives, perched on the backs of chairs, and so forth. It is the same at his delightful entresol in the Champs Elysees.

Leprosy in the United States.

A circular letter (8,000 copies) sent from Washington to every city and county physician, every health officer and every responsible head of a hospital in the country has brought in 2,000 replies, from which information has been gathered that an alarming number of cases of leprosy exists in the United States, chiefly among foreigners.—American Medicine.

Found the Thief.

Diamonds and other articles of jewelry have frequently been missed by a firm in Chicago. Detectives failed to discover the thieves. A pedestrian viewing the window display one evening saw a rat run out from a corner and steal a diamond ring. He reported the matter to the proprietors, and all the missing jewelry has been found in the rat's resting place.

Oil For Dusty Streets.

For several years oil has been used in southern California towns to lay the dust in the streets in summer and on the roads in the country. There oil has long ago ceased to be an experiment as a dust layer, and the people say it is a splendid roadmaker. When the oil first touches the dust covered street, it spreads out among the tiny atoms pretty much as does a drop of oil precipitated to the surface of water in a bucket. When a quantity of oil has been spread and the surface of the street is covered, the oil gravitates down through the dust and dirt and solidifies or cakes the entire surface of the street. The sun dries out and hardens the surface, and a splendid road is the result, almost as hard as asphalt, and with all the dust and dirt imprisoned under the hard upper crust made by the hardening of the oil soaked top dirt and dust.—National Oil Reporter.

Seven Years In Bed.

"Will wonders ever cease!" inquire the friends of Mrs. L. Pease, of Lawrence, Kas. They knew she had been unable to leave her bed in seven years on account of kidney and liver trouble, nervous prostration and general debility; but, "Three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk," she writes, "and in three months I felt like a new person." Women suffering from Headache, Backache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells will find it a priceless blessing. Try it. Satisfaction is guaranteed by R. R. THE LATEST AS TO NERVES AND STRENGTH

IT IS not muscle so much as the nerve back of muscle which show one's strength and power of endurance. And the study with able physicians of to-day is how to keep the nerves in perfect health and fitted for the strain of everyday living. Headache of every type, nerve weakness, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, lack of nerve force, nervous dyspepsia, muscular weakness, brain weariness, poor circulation,—a thousand different unpleasant feelings and symptoms are due to nerve waste and nerve weakness,—especially in women and children. But how can all this be prevented, one will ask? How can my broken-down constitution be repaired, and nerve strength and full, robust health be secured. Just two points to remember: Determine that you will grow strong in nerves and health, and decide to use at once that most famous nerve cure, CUTICELLIN. It is delicious in taste, quick in action and makes the wearied nerves tingle with renewed strength and every function the stronger and faculty the brighter by its use. Druggists sell it.

The Morning Star.

MISS NELLIE CROPSEY'S DISAPPEARANCE.

A Clue to the Mystery—Mass Meeting at Elizabeth City—Important Developments Expected.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., Dec. 9.—A member of the committee of five which has charge of the search for Nellie Cropsey, whose mysterious disappearance has created a sensation throughout the State, said to night that he expected important developments within forty-eight hours, adding that he believed the girl had been kidnapped and that they would succeed in finding her. A mass meeting was held to-night at which over a thousand people were present. Chairman H. T. Greenleaf, of the special vigilance committee of five, made a speech, saying they believed that after chasing shadows and rainbows they at last had brought to light a tangible clue which they were assured if followed up would clear up the mystery. They could go no further without more funds, however, as the previous subscriptions had been exhausted. The meeting resulted in about $200 being raised.

During its progress, a remark, "let's make the one who knows all about this affair disclose it," evoked loud applause, the audience understanding that young Wilcox, who was the last person seen with Miss Cropsey, was referred to.

A MISSING CASHIER.

Disappeared Saturday With $100,000 or More of the Bank's Funds.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Dec. 9.—H. J. Fleishman, cashier of the Farmers and Merchants bank, of this city, has disappeared with a sum of the bank's money which Vice President H. W. Hellman estimates at $100,000. The shortage was discovered to-day. Fleishman has not been seen since 9 o'clock Saturday morning. At that hour he was at his club. He notified the bank people that he was ill Saturday morning and would not be at his desk. Nothing was thought of the matter at the time. When he failed to report to-day his accounts were examined and the shortage was discovered. The exact amount has not yet been ascertained.

The Farmers and Merchants bank, of which I. W. Hellman is president and H. W. Hellman is vice president, is the oldest and strongest bank in Southern California. Its capital is $500,000 with a surplus of $1,000,000 and deposits of $5,500,000

TRIAL OF MRS. BONINE.

Dr. Carr Testified as to Relative Positions of Mrs. Bonine and Ayres.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Judge Anderson, before whom Mrs. Lola Ida Bonnie is being tried for the murder of James Seymour Ayres, Jr., to-day sustained the objection of the district attorney to the hypothetical question submitted to Dr. Carr, an expert, on Saturday. The court stated that to admit the question would only cloud the situation and embarrass instead of instruct the jury. The question was reframed, and the doctor answered that, in his opinion, the location of a hip wound such as received by Ayres, could not be materially influenced in its height or direction by the fact that deceased was or was not walking or running. Dr. Carr was on the stand during a major portion of the day, his testimony relating to the relative positions of Mrs. Bonnie and Ayres when the killing took place.

POSTAL PECULATIONS.

A Clerk Charged With Rifling a Mail Pouch—Postoffices Robbed.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., Dec. 9.—An unusual number of postal peculations were reported to the postal inspector of this district to-day.

DRAMATIC EPISODE IN THE SENATE.

Tillman Challenged His Colleague, McLaurin, to Resign With Him On the Spot.

DID NOT TAKE UP THE GAUGE

McLaurin Charged a Conspiracy to Discredit Him in His Own State—Denounced the New Democratic Leaders—Senator Jones.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, December 9.—The Senate chamber was the scene of a highly dramatic episode to day when Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, challenged his colleague, Senator McLaurin, to resign with him on the spot in order, to use his own language, that they might be able "to wash their dirty linen at home." Mr. McLaurin did not take up the gauge. The exciting clash between the two Senators to-day was the direct sequel of the very bitter controversy which arose between them in South Carolina last Spring.

At the conclusion of the morning business there was something of a stir in the chamber when Senator McLaurin, South Carolina, arose to a question of personal privilege. He had before him a huge pile of manuscript. "I arise to a question of personal privilege in connection with the published statement that I have been excluded from participation in the Democratic caucus," he announced. With evidence of considerable emotion he proceeded to explain that if such was the case, and if he was to be without assignment upon committees, the right of his State, which he in part represented in the Senate, would suffer. The personal effect of an exclusion from representation on committees, he said, was not of so much importance as its effect upon the State of South Carolina.

The only notice he had ever had, he said, that he was to be excluded from the Democratic caucus came last Spring, before the adjournment of the Senate, when he was accosted by the chairman of the Democratic national committee in the cloak room and asked why he no longer attended the Democratic caucuses. Senator McLaurin said he had replied that in view of his opinion of the questions growing out of the Spanish war he thought that his presence might be embarrassing. The Democratic chairman had replied: "Then, perhaps, it would be less embarrassing to you not to be invited to the caucus?"

Senator McLaurin said he had replied: "Certainly."

This incident, Senator McLaurin declared, was the culmination of a long series of events in a contest waged by an element of the Democratic party against him.

Republicans Interested.

By this time the entire Senate was interested. Several Republicans crossed the political aisle to the Democratic side in order to better listen to what Senator McLaurin had to say.

Continuing, Senator McLaurin said he would be silent did he not fear that the movement against him was one to keep alive sectionalism. For many years the people of the South had realized that they had not obtained their fair share of the national benefits. Senator McLaurin recalled the fact that although Samuel J. Randall had advocated a protective tariff he had been voted for in a Democratic national convention for President. Hancock, although he declared that the tariff was a local issue, had been nominated for President and David B. Hill, although he opposed the income tax, had not been read out of the Democratic party.

The holding of such views by Northern men, no matter how diverse, did not endanger the position of certain leaders, and consequently they were immune from attack. But when a Southern man, said Senator McLaurin, tried to get the benefit of the tariff for his people, those whose political career might be ended by the success of his efforts were ready to crush and humiliate him. He had contended that if the tariff was a robbery his section should share in the booty. Upon the issue of that speech he had later gone into a campaign in South Carolina and, although his Democracy had been attacked upon the stump, the people of his State had endorsed him. He declared that during that campaign "calumny, falsehood and trickery" never before equalled in American politics had been employed, and now the

was that during the McKinley administration he had been "bought by patronage," and that he had renewed his former contract with President Roosevelt. Entertaining the high personal regard that he did for both the late President and his successor, Mr. McLaurin said it would be unnecessary for him to say that neither would stoop to so ignoble an act. It was true that an unfortunate condition of affairs had existed in his State, and that he had recommended good men for office because he did not desire to see a repetition of the horrible affair at Lake City, when a negro postmaster had been burned to death. He had voted for the war with Spain and declared that with the same spirit in which he had cast that vote he felt that he was compelled to support the administration that conducted it. He still thought that the conduct of the war should have been non-partisan and during its progress he had never heard from President McKinley's lips a word concerning party advantage. Senator McLaurin paid a high tribute to the late President, who he characterized as a "broad statesman and Christian gentleman."

Senator McLaurin said that he had no official knowledge of the charge brought against him by his Democratic colleagues, but that from the newspapers he understood that the principal charges were that he had not opposed the ratification of the treaty of peace with Spain, that he had upheld the administration in its efforts to restore order in the Philippines, and to that end had voted for an increase in the standing army, and that he was in favor of the upbuilding of the American merchant marine.

"If these are the only charges," said he dramatically, "they are true and I glory in them."

The Party Lash.

He said he had not wished to vote against his party upon the question of ratifying the peace treaty, and had it not been for the re-opening of hostilities in the Philippines he would have deferred to the opinion of his colleagues. "But," he declared, "the dictates of reason and conscience should not be stifled by the party."

With bitter words Mr. McLaurin then proceeded to excoriate the new leaders of the Democracy, who, he said, had guided the party through its destruction during the last six years and who were trying to crucify those who would seek to draw the Democratic party back to its old allegiance. He was not one of those who wished to use the name of Democracy for a shroud in which to bury the principles of the old party. That party, he declared, had always been triumphant except when the sectional issue was raised. He still proposed, he said, to vote, in his judgment, for what he believed to be along the lines of Democratic principles, but he did not propose to place himself against a proposition which he believed to be for the best interests of the people simply because it was advocated by Republicans

In conclusion, Mr. McLaurin said he did not propose to be driven from his own party nor to be forced into affiliation with the party with which he did not care to allay himself, and that on great public questions he would act according to the dictates of his own conscience and best judgment.

Senator Jones Took the Floor.

When Senator McLaurin took his seat Senator Jones, Arkansas, took the floor to make a statement. Some of the statements made by Senator McLaurin, Senator Jones said, he considered a reflection upon himself and he desired to offer a statement concerning the incident to which Senator McLaurin had referred. At the extra session of the Senate last Spring he had been asked by the caucus officer for the list of Senators who were to be summoned to a caucus, and Senator McLaurin's name being mentioned, he (Jones) had said he would himself see the Senator from South Carolina. "I met him in the cloak room," said Senator Jones, "and recalling the fact that he had not attended a Democratic caucus for more than two years, I asked him what his status was. He replied that his relations with the party were such that he thought it would be embarrassing for him to enter the Democratic caucus. I then said to him: "You do not wish to be invited, then," and he replied, "Certainly not."

"As to the charge of ulterior motive on my part," continued Senator Jones, "I am content to treat it with the contempt it deserves. It is a notorious fact which every one seems to understand except the Senator from South Carolina, that there has been no Democratic caucus at this session of Congress. I have no hesitancy, however, in saying that in a recent conversation with a leading member on the other side, I said to him that I did not think the Democratic caucus could undertake to provide committee assignments for the Senator from South Carolina."

Senator Tillman.

Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, was on his feet when Senator Jones concluded. In his characteristic way he announced that while his name had not been mentioned he realized that he was the cause of it all. He said he would not at this time make an extended reply. Briefly then, he reviewed the controversy between himself and Senator McLaurin which led to the joint tender of their resignations to the Governor of South Carolina last Spring and told of the Governor's suggestion that the resignations be withdrawn. Senator Tillman said he contended that the Governor was simply "a box into which we had put letters for the Legislature," and that he could not undo their act, but that Senator McLaurin hastened to withdraw his letter. Senator Tillman said he had examined the record and of about 200 cases in the history of the government, where Senators had resigned, Senator McLaurin enjoyed the enviable distinction of being the only one who had withdrawn his resignation after offering it As to Senator McLaurin's charge of conspiracy to humiliate him by barring him from the Democratic caucus, Mr. Tillman called attention to the fact that he had not been in Washington during the extra session of the Senate last Spring. "This conspiracy," he said, "is a dream conjured up by him. It is the creation of his own brain."

In conclusion, Mr. Tillman, with a sweep of his arm, adjured his Democratic colleagues not to "fret" about the charge that they were conspiring to discredit Senator McLaurin at at home, because "his crowd was demoralized, cowed and whipped."

McLaurin Replies to Jones.

Senator McLaurin made no reply to Senator Tillman, but he arose for a moment to reply to Senator Jones to say that he did not desire that there should be anything personal in his charge that there had been an "ulterior purpose" in anything he had done. "I thought I was justified in saying what I did," said he. "I accept his disclaimer."

"I disclaim nothing," retorted Senator Jones, without rising from his seat. I simply contradicted."

"I thank the Senator for his courtesy," observed Senator McLaurin, bowing with mock deference as he took his seat.

Hoar Raises a Question.

Senator Hoar, Massachusetts, addressed himself to the legality of the resignations, which the South Carolina Senators had sent to the Governor of their State. He declared that the resignation of a legislative officer vacated the office at once, and that he doubted whether such resignations could be withdrawn. He said that Speaker Blaine had so held upon one occasion in the House contrary to the English notion that a legislative office cannot be resigned. He said that a man could not be kept in office against his will, and raised a laugh by observing that in his opinion neither of the South Carolina Senators had a right to address the Senate if the statements made by Senator Tillman were correct.

In reply to the sally Senator Tillman said he had himself been of the same opinion, although he was not a lawyer, and in withdrawing his resignation from the Governor of the State he had added that he withdrew it "if it was lawful so do so." He suggested that the judiciary committee should look into the matter, as he should enjoy nothing so much as washing the dirty linen at home.

Challenged to Resign.

Jumping to his feet, Senator McLaurin declared, in ringing tones, that he was ready to meet his colleague at any place or at any time for the discussion of the issues between them. Thereupon, in the most dramatic fashion, Senator Tillman challenged his colleague to resign on the spot. "Let us draw up the papers now," said he, "and tender them to this man," pointing with outstretched arm toward the presiding officer, "and that will settle it."

All eyes were turned upon Senator McLaurin as Senator Tillman paused, as if waiting for his colleague to accept the challenge, but Senator McLaurin, although looking him steadily in the eye, did not rise from his seat or make reply.

Senator Hoar again took the floor and explained in detail the occasion upon which Speaker Blaine had held that a resignation immediately vacated a seat in the House. A resolution for the expulsion of a member from South Carolina was about to be voted upon and the member, knowing that the resolution would be adopted, sent his resignation to the chair with the intention of addressing the House and then offering it before the vote on the resolution was taken. As soon as Speaker Blaine saw the nature of the communication sent to him he immediately declared the seat vacant, thus putting an end to all further proceedings.

Senator Hoar's Contention.

Senator Hoar contended that if the facts bearing upon the case of the South Carolinians had been correctly stated, it was doubtful whether they were entitled to seats upon the floor of the Senate at this time. He thought the Committee on Privileges and Elections should inquire into the matter.

Senator Tillman said he was glad that his own legal instinct had been backed up by such an eminent authority as the chairman of the Judiciary Committee. If his colleague would prepare any document that would vacate his seat as well as his (Tillman's) he would be glad to sign it. As long as he represented the people on the floor, he said in conclusion, he proposed to do so honestly, and not in a fashion which was a disgrace to his State.

Mr. Lodge at this point arose with a smile on his face and said that while the resignations were preparing he would move that the Senate go into executive session.

The motion was carried.

After half an hour behind closed doors the Senate adjourned.

MR. CARNEGIE'S MUNIFICENCE

Offers to Give Ten Million Dollars to Build and Endow a National University in Washington, D. C.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The Washington Post to-morrow will say:

President Roosevelt has received a letter from Andrew Carnegie in which the latter offers to make a donation of $10,000,000 to the United States. The letter will be referred to Congress by the President in a special message.

Mr. Carnegie's gift is for the purpose of establishing in Washington a university for higher education. As far as his idea has been developed it proposes a gift after the manner of the bequest of James Smithson, the Englishman, who gave $1,000,000 for the establishment and maintenance of what is now known as the Smithsonian Institution. Smithson desired the institution founded by him to be a factor in "the diffusion of scientific knowledge."

Mr. Carnegie proposes that the university which he is to endow shall be the greatest institution in the world for the development of higher education. He has consulted President Gillman, of Johns Hopkins University; President Hadley, of Yale; President Eliot, of Harvard; former President White, of Cornell, and all the leading educators of the country. They heartily endorse his plan. The proposed university will not interfere in the least with the educational institutions already established, but will supplement them, for according to the present plan its doors will be open only to those who desire to take up a post graduate course. Mr. Carnegie wants the new university to take the lead in original research, so that the United States can eventually stand side by side with Germany, if not excel that nation, in scientific development.

Mr. Carnegie's plan does not propose a national university in the sense that an appropriation will be asked or needed. The government is simply to be the trustee of the magnificent endowment, just as it administers the fund bequeathed by Smithson. It is probable that a board of regents will be appointed, as in the case of the Smithsonian Institution, or it may be that the government will be represented upon the board of directors, which, it is contemplated, shall consist of men of national reputation.

Mr. Carnegie has kept the proposed endowment a secret until he could definitely arrange the plans and scope of the new university. Even yet all these details have not been arranged, so that little more than the outline of his gift can be published. It is known, however, that he does not propose to ask from Congress a single foot of land upon which the university buildings will be constructed. The entire expense is to be borne out of his endowment. No site has been selected as yet. It will, however, necessarily be very large, as it is proposed to erect a series of magnificent structures.

The amount of money to be given by Mr. Carnegie equals the sum of the present endowment fund of Harvard, and is considerably more than the invested fund of Yale. With the Catholic University, the Methodist University and the proposed Carnegie University, Washington will be the educational centre of the country.
